Welcome

Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement

Dr Simone Ulalka Tur is from the Yankunytjatjara community, north-west South Australia and has resided in Adelaide on Kurna Yarta, South Australia.

Simone is a graduate of Flinders University (MEdSt 2002, PhD(CHASS) 2018) and has a background in arts research, Indigenous studies and education. She has held a number of leadership positions at Flinders University including the inaugural Pro Vice-Chancellor Indigenous (from 2020) and Director of Yungkurinthe First Nations for Higher Education & Research (2011-2015).

A particular focus of her leadership role involves integrating Indigenous Australian perspectives within university topics and promoting a greater understanding between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australian peoples and the broader Australian community. She currently lectures to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students each year, representing her educational philosophy of privileging Indigenous cultures, languages and ideologies as a deconstruction and de-colonising educational process. Her work also explores new spaces where all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples can re-engage and transform their understandings of Australia and what it means to be Australian from an Indigenous perspective. Simone is also part of The Unbound Collective – a collective of four Aboriginal women academics/artists, who enact critical creative responses to colonial archives.

The Pro Vice-Chancellor (Indigenous) through the Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement, has responsibility for providing strategic leadership for the University in relation to fostering and affirming Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander student educational success, enacting the vision and collective commitment of the University's Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan, the Indigenisation of its programs through recognition and embedding of Indigenous knowledges and perspectives, the promotion of teaching and research in Indigenous Studies, the employment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff, and engagement with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities priorities and future aspirations.

I welcome you all to Flinders University, the Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement and Yungkurinthe Student Engagement.

Associate Professor Simone Tur

Pro Vice-Chancellor (Indigenous)

Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement

We recognise that Flinders was established on the lands of the Kurna Nation.

Flinders University acknowledges the Traditional Owners and Custodians of the lands on which its campuses are located, these are the Traditional Lands of the Arrernte, Dagoman, First Nations of the South East, First Peoples of the River Murray & Mallee region, Jawoyn, Kurna, Larrakia, Ngadjuri, Ngarrindjeri, Ramindjeri, Warumungu, Wardaman and Yolngu people. We honour their Elders past, present and emerging.

Elders on Campus Elder Network

Elders on Campus is a University-wide initiative to engage more deeply with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, enhance Indigenous perspectives across education and research, and enrich support for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and staff – aligning with Flinders University's Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP).

Uncle Dr. Lewis Yarlupurka O'Brien, AO
Kurna Elder
Bedford Park
Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement

Bedford Park Senior Elder on campus Uncle Lewis has worked tirelessly with schools, universities, communities, and government agencies for more than 30 years to embed a Kurna presence into Adelaide's cultural landscape, and his research has contributed enormously to the endurance of the Kurna language.

Uncle Lewis is known for his warm mentorship of Aboriginal children and families, combined with his rich political contributions and leadership across heritage, arts, sport, reconciliation and education.

At Flinders University, he has been involved in reviews of centres, as Elder on the Indigenous Health Professional Education Advisory Committee, and was Patron/Elder-in-Residence to the Indigenous Preparation for Medicine program.

Uncle Richard 'Balang/Japaljarri' Fejo
Larrakia Elder
Darwin
Poche SA+NT

Darwin Senior Elder on Campus Uncle Richard 'Balang/Japaljarri' Fejo is a Larrakia man (his father's country) and Wurramungu from Tennant Creek (his mother's country). Mr Fejo has presented Larrakia Welcome to Country in Darwin since 1994 and is a locally recognised and accepted Elder in his community. He is serving in his third year as the Chairman of the Larrakia Nation in Darwin and recently joined the board for the NT Australia Day Council. Uncle Richard was previously employed by Northern Territory General Practice Education for eleven years. In this role, he spent nine years as the Senior Cultural Educator and five years as the Co-Chair of the National Cultural Educator and Cultural Mentor Network.

Aunty Dr. Pat Miller, AO
Arrernte Elder
Alice Springs
Poche SA+NT

Alice Springs Elder on Campus Aunty Pat Miller, AO is a Traditional Owner and Native Title Holder of Alice Springs and accepted by the community as an Arrernte Elder. Aunty Pat is well respected for her cultural knowledge and expertise and received a doctorate from Flinders University in 2013, in acknowledgement of her ability to provide culturally appropriate guidance during many years of employment and leadership within Central Australia. She has over a decade of experience with Remote Health Central Australia and was the CEO of the Central Australian Aboriginal Legal Aid Service.

Reconciliation at Flinders

Innovate: Reconciliation Action Plan May 2020 – May 2022

Together | Reciprocity | Respect

Flinders University's collective vision is to foster an environment that recognises and embraces Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, knowledges and cultures. This vision for reconciliation is grounded in the concepts of togetherness, reciprocity, and respect. Achieving this vision for reconciliation requires courage, generosity, integrity and truth-telling. Flinders University recognises that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are the descendants of the first peoples of the lands and waters of Australia and have occupied, enjoyed, utilised and managed these Lands and Waters since time immemorial. We respect and recognise the long-held philosophies, knowledges, research, strengths and contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities in this country. As a university community, we commit to reconciliation as part of everyday practice and acknowledge the vital role it can play in building understanding and acceptance of our shared histories, as we work towards a shared future. This Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) is part of Flinders University's ongoing work to increase Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community participation, retention and success in higher education and commits to celebrating Indigenous success and self-determination. This is a whole-of-university responsibility.

Yungkurrintheni

Yungkurrintheni is a name given to us by Kurna Elders, meaning 'to impart knowledge, to communicate, and to inform.'

This meaning reflects our core values of respect, commitment, empowerment, reciprocity, inclusiveness, collaboration, interconnectedness, integrity, generosity of spirit and creativity. We seek positive transformation of Indigenous social, political and economic life and wellbeing through supporting the higher education aspirations of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Yungkurrintheni Student Engagement

Welcome to Flinders University, and to the Yungkurrintheni community network. As part of our network you will join over 400 current Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and those who have graduated from Flinders since our first Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander alumni graduated in the early 1970s.

Yungkurrintheni Student Engagement sits within the Office of Indigenous Strategy and Engagement. We are committed to increasing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander student access, participation, retention and success. We provide a range of services and supports for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and our team of highly qualified staff is dedicated to supporting you throughout your student journey.

BELOW: Artwork by contemporary Aboriginal artist Elizabeth Close, a Pitjantjatjara Yankunytjatjara woman and Flinders alumna. This artwork responds to and reflects the incredible natural landscape in and around Flinders, and seeks to place into stark relief the elements of earth and water, coast and landscape; sun, flora and fauna. The artwork features as a mural in the Tjilbruke Student Lounge, Yungkurrintheni Truku Building at Flinders Bedford Park campus.

The staff at Yungkurrinthe Student Engagement are experienced in supporting Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to successfully transition to university and meet the challenges of university life.

Indigenous Student Support Officers (ISSOs)

ISSO's work directly with students to provide one-on-one support throughout the student lifecycle on a range of matters, from pre-enrolment advice through to post graduate studies and assist with pathways to further study or employment. Staff can also provide you with referrals to health and counselling, disability or any other services you may need to access.

Academic study development - Deadly Study Program

The Deadly Study Program aims to provide students with flexible access to culturally responsive academic study advice. Suitable for undergraduate and postgraduate degrees, the program employs study advisors who can support you to develop study skills with managing your university and study needs, be that via effective time management, academic engagement, planning and writing essays, preparing for exams and presentations, researching, and referencing. They can also provide academic advocacy to help you resolve any issues that may arise during your study. Study advisors are available meet face to face or online and hosts a number of study resources online at FLO.

Scaffolding student success and wellbeing, the Deadly Study Program works closely with the Yungkurrinthe Tutorial Program to ensure students are supported throughout their degrees, setting you up for your future prospects.

Yungkurrinthe Tutorial Program (YTP)

YTP provides free tutoring for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students enrolled in degree programs at Flinders. YTP connects you to a tutor who has expertise in your subject area and can support you to develop your understanding and critical engagement in the curriculum.

Join us

Orientation program

As a new student you are invited to attend our orientation program, which is aimed at facilitating your transition into university. Run in February and July, the program focuses on cultural identity and developing foundation university study skills. It's a great opportunity for you to meet and get to know other Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and staff.

Student Ambassador program

Become a student ambassador and support Yungkurrinthe Student Engagement at events, workshops and school engagement on a casual employment basis. A fun and engaging way to boost your resume and work experience while giving back to prospective Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students.

Study Space

Yungkurrinthe Trruku is our home and our shelter which we share with you to provide a space where you can study, relax or just hang out 24/7. It includes a computer lab, lounge, study desks and tutoring rooms.

Student Engagement

Social events are held regularly, including free lunches, student forums and morning teas.

Yungkurrinthe Inparrila (meeting place)

A dedicated outdoor space situated to the Yungkurrinthe Turruku (Building) at Bedford Park, which honours and acknowledges Country, cultural knowledge and learning. Nestled in the sloping landscape surrounded by nature, it features a fire pit and a special Kurna Wardli (shelter). The Wardli, was designed by Kurna artist James Tylor and Wiradjuri architectural designer Samantha Rich.

Yungkurrinthe Inparrila (meeting place) offers a space to host Welcome to Country, smoking ceremonies, events and gatherings, and learning and teaching activities. It provides a place of wellbeing and healing, a place to grieve, and somewhere to bring Indigenous and non-Indigenous communities together.

Yungkurrinthe Inparrila would not have been possible without the generous support of the late Ms. Shirley Mathews, a former Flinders student, who left a considerable bequest to the University and it's this generosity which has enabled Yungkurrinthe Inparrila to become a reality. To honour Ms. Mathews, a plaque sits within the space to ensure that future generations of the Flinders community will remember her generous contribution to the University.

The project was completed in partnership with Flinders University Properties, Facilities and Development, WAX Design, Iguana Creative and SARAH Construction.

Elders on Campus

Across Flinders SA and NT campuses. Elders on Campus can provide cultural mentoring, support, advice, information and referral to support the wellbeing and success of students studying at Flinders.

Accommodation

There are multiple accommodation options depending on your circumstances. Flinders is the only South Australian University with oncampus accommodation, Flinders Living.

Furthermore, Indigenous Student Support Officers can help assist you in the process and link you to independent and government housing options.

“Flinders and Yungkurrinthe have given me the opportunity to meet others with similar ambitions and goals as myself and find the benefit of an education in places I would never have thought to look. As a proud Indigenous woman, I want to use my degree to work in First Nation communities to help our young people make it through their high schooling experience and onto their own future aspirations.”

Pathways to study

At Flinders, we recognise that every prospective student is an individual and that what works for one might not be right for another.

That's why we provide various admission pathways into Flinders University and your preferred degree. You're encouraged to explore your options and find the entry path that's right for you.

Indigenous Admission Scheme (IAS)

The IAS provides Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people an alternative pathway into Flinders University. See page 14 for further details.

Flinders Foundation Studies

One of our most popular pathways into a Flinders degree is Flinders Foundation Studies. This preparation program is open to eligible applicants, enabling you to begin your studies at university.

- 4-month program at no cost to students*
- Gain eligibility to apply for most of Flinders undergraduate courses
- Be introduced to some of the major fields of study available at Flinders University.

*Commonwealth Government funded program. Students are expected to undertake further university studies upon successful completion of Foundation Studies.

Year 12 entry

The majority of Year 12 applicants enter university via the traditional competitive entry method, where offers are made to eligible applicants with the highest selection rank until all places in the degree are filled. Your selection rank is used by Flinders to assess your admission to a course and is based on your ATAR plus any adjustment factors for which you are eligible.

The 2022 selection rank shown for each degree indicates the lowest rank for which an offer was made to an applicant in that degree for that year (including any adjustment factors). It is provided only as a guide for 2023 entry as it may change from year to year.

Adjustment factors

Adjustment factors (formerly referred to as bonus points) may be used in combination with your ATAR to derive your course selection rank. Adjustment factors may be available for South Australian Year 12 students applying for entry to Flinders in 2021, the SA Universities Equity Scheme (UES) and the SA Language, Literacy and Mathematics Bonus Scheme (LLM).

Guaranteed entry selection rank

Achieve a selection rank equal to or above the published guaranteed entry selection rank and you'll be guaranteed a place at Flinders. All you need to do is ensure you have listed Flinders degrees first in your preferences and you will be offered a place in the highest Flinders degree preference that you are eligible for in 2021.

uniTEST

If you're a school leaver, uniTEST is your chance to increase your options to gain a place in your preferred degree. uniTEST is designed for school leavers and complements existing selection criteria by enhancing your overall selection rank.

TAFELink

Flinders offers guaranteed entry to selected degrees for applicants who have completed a TAFE/VET Certificate IV or higher-level qualification, as long as degree prerequisites are met. Importantly, your TAFE/VET qualification does not need to be related to your selected area of study at Flinders.

TAFE SA dual offers

You can apply for a TAFE SA* diploma or advanced diploma that is linked to a Flinders degree. You'll receive an offer to both TAFE SA and Flinders University. On successful completion of the TAFE course, you'll have secured an offer for a Flinders degree.

TAFE SA dual offers are available for a range of Flinders degrees.

TAFE SA RTO Code: 41026.

Adult entry

The adult entry scheme enables people aged 18 years and over to apply to study at Flinders via the Special Tertiary Admissions Test (STAT). Applications are made via SATAC.

Tertiary transfer

If you have completed at least one semester of full-time equivalent study at university, you may be able to transfer to study at Flinders University using your grade point average (GPA).

Indigenous Admission Scheme (IAS)

The Indigenous Admission Scheme provides an alternative pathway for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people into Flinders University.

Are you eligible?

To be eligible for the Indigenous Admission Scheme you must be an Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander in accordance with the Commonwealth definition which requires you to:

- Be of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander descent, and
- Identify as an Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander, and
- Be accepted as an Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander in the community in which you live or have lived.

You may be currently studying Year 12, or be a non-school leaver.

Application process

1. Apply for the course you want to study through the South Australian Tertiary Admissions Centre (SATAC). You will get an application number from SATAC that you will need for your Indigenous Admission application form.*
2. Complete the online Indigenous Admission Scheme application with essential supporting documentation.
3. An interview is part of the application process; however, you will be notified about this.

*You have an option of paying the SATAC processing fee at a later time. To waive your late fee, please email us at ias@flinders.edu.au

Key dates

Semester one, first round applications close late October - early November, with second round applications closing mid January. If you are interested in midyear entry please email ias@flinders.edu.au

More information

More information about the application process and the online application form can be found at flinders.edu.au/study/pathways/indigenous-admission-scheme

If you would like one of our Indigenous Student Support Officers to contact you to discuss your study options at Flinders, please email ias@flinders.edu.au

Foundation studies

Flinders Foundation Studies is a university bridging course designed to give you the confidence and skills you need to start one of over 30 Flinders degrees. In as short as 5 weeks, or via a 4-month or 7-month program, you could step into a Flinders degree and start your fearless journey to a new career. And the best part? Foundation Studies is government funded, so there is no cost to you.*

Foundation studies

What will you learn?

Foundation Studies has been carefully designed to prepare you for university study.

Whether you take the fast-tracked 5-week intensive program, the 4-month program or the longer 7-month program, you'll gain:

- university-level study skills and an understanding of university life
- digital literacy and reading skills
- academic communication skills
- critical thinking and analytical skills
- the confidence that you're prepared and ready to start your degree.

What will you study?

Flinders Foundation Studies covers the following topics:

- Introduction to University Study through Academic Writing
- Developing the Skills of Academic Literacy
- Developing the Skills of Academic Numeracy
- Flinders University: An Introduction to Different Areas of Study

Students will be required to attend a minimum of 75% of classes in each topic to pass the program.

When you can study?

We offer Foundation Studies in both semester 1 (March entry) and semester 2 (July entry). Applications open a few months prior for both intakes and the program runs for one semester.

Alternatively, in semester 1, there is an additional option of undertaking Foundation Studies entirely on campus at Flinders University (evening classes). This is suited to those with day-time commitments and will run for seven months, allowing you to begin your Flinders University degree in semester 1 the following year.

Where will you study?

Online from anywhere. Whether you live in regional Australia or in a metropolitan area, you can study online from the comfort of your home.

On-campus from one of four locations across metro Adelaide:

- Flinders University, Bedford Park (daytime and evening classes)
- TAFE SA Adelaide (daytime classes)
- TAFE SA Noarlunga (daytime classes)
- Stretton Centre, Munno Para (daytime classes)

How to apply

We offer Foundation Studies in semester 1 (late February entry) and semester 2 (July entry). Applications open a few months prior to the start date and the program runs for one semester. It is offered in both metropolitan and regional areas with our partner TAFE SA.

To begin your application please visit: flinders.edu.au/foundation

* This is a Commonwealth Government funded program, meaning there are no fees charged to undertake the course. Upon successful completion of the program, students are able to undertake further university studies.

As a mature aged person, the idea of going back to study was extremely daunting! My friend told me about the Foundation Studies program at Flinders and the fact that it was one semester and no cost felt like I had nothing to lose. But I got so much more out of it than I imagined. It taught me how to reference, write assignments, communicate in groups and basics of certain topics. I managed the workload which gave me enough confidence to apply for the Bachelor of Midwifery and my Foundation Studies score as well as support from the Indigenous Admission Scheme, helped me gain entry.

It is safe to say the Midwifery degree is the hardest thing I have done with a lot of ups and downs and challenges. It is a big adjustment to life, but something worth doing to reach that goal. Yungkurinthe has been so helpful in so many ways. Overall, through Flinders I have gained invaluable lessons and skills, and education is something we can never have too much of. I am grateful to have been able to use my Foundation Studies completion to gain entry to Midwifery.

Flinders in the Northern Territory

Flinders University's presence in the Northern Territory supports our commitment to health research, education and workforce development in the NT and provides unforgettable placement opportunities for many of our students.

Flinders in the Northern Territory includes:

Northern Territory Medical Program (NTMP)

You can study the Flinders medical degree in the Northern Territory through the Northern Territory Medical Program (NTMP). A major focus of the NTMP is to attract and support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants to study medicine.

There are 24 places offered annually in total, and all places are industry supported by the Northern Territory Government.

Flinders University offers a range of pathways to medicine through the Northern Territory Medical Program:

Year 12 Bachelor of Clinical Sciences with Charles Darwin University/NTMP Pathway

Available to school leavers or higher education students who have studied for no more than one year and have their NTCET. Twelve places are available, and up to seven places are reserved for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants (five for NT Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and two for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students nationally).

Indigenous Entry Stream (IES) Pathway

There are a number of stages to the IES: Application form and Interview, followed by Preparation for Medicine Program (PMP), and the Flinders University Extended Learning in Sciences (FUELS). Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians can apply to study medicine in both Adelaide and the Northern Territory through this pathway.

Graduate Entry Pathway

12 graduate-entry places are available each year with places sponsored by the Northern Territory Government. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants may also choose to apply through this graduate-entry pathway.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander graduates with a GAMSAT result may choose to apply via our graduate-entry pathway, or via the IES pathway.

To find out how you can start something amazing and become a doctor in the NT, please contact us at:

Poche SA+NT

The vision of Poche SA+NT is to create a life-course approach, to promote cultural learning pathways, support healthy country and build leadership capacity for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in health.

Poche SA+NT focuses on capacity development of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander leadership and the health workforce throughout the South Australian and Northern Territory central corridor by undertaking to:

1. Provide tertiary learning guidance, pathways and support from youth to retirement in the development of a significant cohort of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health workers and leaders.
2. Foster ongoing partnerships and engagement with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.
3. Undertake collaborative research with specific focus on social and cultural determinants of health.
4. Incorporate traditional and western innovations into interdisciplinary educational and teaching activities.

Poche SA+NT has an Elder on campus program across Flinders University SA and NT campuses. Elders provide cultural mentoring, support, advice, information and referral to support the wellbeing and success of students studying at Flinders University (see page 5).

For further information please refer to the Poche SA +NT website at: flinders.edu.au/poche

Paramedic Science in the NT

Flinders University now offers its Bachelor of Paramedic Science degree to NT residents.

Further information on this exciting development as well as admission details are available at: flinders.edu.au/study/health/paramedics

Health Placement in the NT

Allied health and nursing students from any Australian university can apply for a Northern Territory placement supported by Flinders University.

Broaden your horizons, discover the NT and complete your university placement requirements by partnering with Flinders University in Alice Springs, Darwin, Katherine, Nhulunbuy or Tennant Creek.

To find out more about placements in the NT email: fnt.placements@flinders.edu.au

Alice Springs campus

Staff at our campus in Alice Springs provide support and assistance in Central Australia to students undertaking health placements, NTMP students and Regional Training Hub activities.

Support includes cultural orientation; accommodation; transport; and educational activities. We also offer fabulous postgraduate and professional development courses for health professionals working or interested in working in remote regions of Australia.

There is also an opportunity to join the research programs which are guided by and responsive to community and health service needs to improve the health of people in remote Australia.

For more information email: crh.reception@flinders.edu.au

Flinders NT Regional Training Hub

Flinders NT Regional Training Hub supports medical students and graduates to take up training positions that address the workforce shortages in the Northern Territory. The Hub collaborates with students, junior doctors, medical colleges and employers to ensure well-coordinated training pathways that prioritise areas of need.

For further information on medical career pathways, including mentoring and support availability please email: fnt.rth@flinders.edu.au

Scholarships and financial support

Appropriate financial support can often be a barrier to students' success. Flinders has a range of scholarships available for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students to assist in meeting accommodation, study and living costs.

There are also a large number of external scholarships available that staff can assist you in applying for.

Highlighting major scholarships

Calthorpe Wong Indigenous Medical Scholarship

Retired ophthalmologists Drs Mary Calthorpe and George Wong have established an endowed fund to support scholarships for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students studying medicine. The Calthorpe Wong Indigenous Medical Scholarship aims to increase the number of Indigenous students working as doctors in Indigenous communities.

One new scholarship will be available each year, subject to funding. Valued at $20,000 per academic year for an initial period of up to four years subject to satisfactory academic progress. Payments will be made in fortnightly instalments.

Professor Lowitja O'Donoghue Indigenous Student Postgraduate Research Scholarship

This scholarship provides an indexed tax-free stipend ($33,594 pa for full-time study in 2020), for up to three years for a Higher Degree by Research, or up to two years for a Masters Degree by Research, subject to satisfactory progress. The scholarship offers generous leave provisions and allowances.

The successful applicant will be eligible to receive a RTP fee offset, which provides an exemption from tuition fees. Periods of study already undertaken towards the degree will be deducted from the maximum period of tenure.

Hearing Australia: Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Master of Audiology Scholarship

The Hearing Australia Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Master of Audiology Scholarship was established in 2017. The scholarship will recognise and support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students enrolled in the Master of Audiology at Flinders University.

One new scholarship will be available each year, subject to funding. The scholarship is valued at $15,000 over two years.

Northern Territory Medical Program Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Bursary

The Northern Territory Medical Program Bursary has been established to provide financial assistance to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students enrolled in the Northern Territory Medical Program at Flinders University. Each Bursary has a value of $20,000 per year for four years.

Peter Baillie Scholarship for Indigenous Students in the Health Sciences

The purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial assistance to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students undertaking an undergraduate course in Health Sciences at Flinders University. Each scholarship will have a value of $5000 paid in equal instalments after the census date of each semester.

Accommodation

Flinders Living

Flinders is the only university in Adelaide that gives you the opportunity to live on campus. Both University Hall and Dierdre Jordan Village are located within the Bedford Park Campus. The wide range of social, sporting and community activities also enhances the student experience at Flinders Living.

There are a variety of accommodation options available at Flinders Living to suit your needs. Accommodation is available in our self-contained units in Dierdre Jordan Village or in University Hall, our catered hall of residence.

Our fees cover the majority of living expenses including water, gas, electricity, internet connection, furniture, laundry, kitchen facilities, some housekeeping, and access to many functions and activities. There are no hidden costs and our payment options are easy, especially with direct debit.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Alumni

More than 580 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students have graduated from Flinders University since 1971.*

Our first Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander student, John Moriarty AM, graduated from Flinders in 1971 with a Bachelor of Arts.

John was followed closely by the late Ken Wanganeen, who graduated with a Bachelor of Arts (Honours) in 1973. In recognition of Ken's academic achievement and his extensive involvement in campus life, the University established the Ken Wanganeen Medal in 2006, awarded annually to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander student with the highest grade point average.

When you graduate, you will become part of the Flinders University Alumni Network of over 110,000 graduates in 120 countries around the world.

Being part of the Alumni Network will provide you with unique opportunities to connect with fellow graduates and to access professional development to progress your career. You can also contribute to the life of the University by mentoring Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students.

John Moriarty AM
BA '71, DUniv '16

John is a Yanyuwa man from Borroloola in the Northern Territory. A part of the Stolen Generation, John was a keen soccer player in his youth, representing South Australia 17 times and in 1960 he was the first Indigenous Australian selected for the National Soccer Team. John is recognised nationally and internationally in the field of design, has been an active member of various Indigenous political organisations, and is a well-known philanthropist. John received the Award of the Degree of Doctor of the University honoris causa in 2016.

Lakkari Rigney
BSpPath(Hons) '17

"Initially I found university challenging. Coming out straight from Year 12, I discovered that there were greater expectations on you to be independent with your learning. Flinders University has a wide range of great resources and services for students to access which helped me to enjoy my studies. University was a great opportunity to meet new, like-minded people and form new friendships. Within my Speech Pathology cohort there were two Indigenous students. I would encourage other Indigenous people to look into this profession, particularly if you are considering a career in allied health."

Shona Reid
BBehavSc '00

Since graduating with a Bachelor of Behavioural Science in 2000, Shona has dedicated her professional and personal life to the advancement and rights of Aboriginal children, young people, families and communities across the state. In 2019 Shona was awarded a Flinders University Distinguished Alumni Award for her significant contribution to the South Australian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community. Holding the position of CEO for Reconciliation SA from 2019 – 2022, Shona is now the Guardian for Children and Young People for the Government of South Australia.
